Q#5: Read the passage and answer the questions given at the end.

The business of a judiciary (the courts and judges), broadly speaking, is the impartial interpretation of the law as between government and citizen, or between classes of citizens who dispute with one another. The government, for instance, charges a man with treason (acting against one's own country); obviously he is deprived (dispossessed) of something essential to his freedom if the law is strained (stretched or forced beyond a proper point or limit) so as to make of treason something it in fact is not, in order to cover the acts which the government seeks to have accepted as treason. Here, obviously, the judge must be assured that his independence may be maintained with safety to himself. He must not suffer in his person or position because of the view he takes. It must not be within the power either of the government or other persons to deprive him of his authority because, as best he may, he applies the law. This, as I think, makes it essential that all the judicial appointments should be held during good behavior. There may be age factor of service, of course; but this apart nothing should permit the removal of a judge from the bench except corruption or physical unfitness.

- What is the function or business of the judiciary? Explain in your own way. (5)
- Explain how the example of the government's false charge of treason against a man should be handled by the judge? (5)
- Do you think the judiciary in our country has been functioning independently? (5)
- Make a précis of the passage. (5)
- Suggest a suitable title for the passage and also justify the suitability of the title in a few sentences. (5)

QUESTIONS WITH SHORT ANSWERS

Q:- 1 Read the following passage carefully and answer the questions given at the end. (20)

Moral self-control, and external prohibition of harmful acts, are not adequate methods of dealing with our anarchic instincts. The reason they are inadequate is that these instincts are capable of as many disguises as the devil in medieval legend, and some of these disguises deceive even the elect. The only adequate method is to discover what are the needs of our instinctive nature, and then to search for the least harmful way of satisfying them. Since spontaneity is what is most thwarted (prevented) by machines, the only thing that can be provided is opportunity: the use made of opportunity must be left to the initiative of the individual. No doubt considerable expense would be involved; but it would not be comparable to the expense of war. Understanding of human nature must be the basis of any real improvements in human life. Science has done wonders in mastering the laws of the physical world, but our own nature is much less understood, as yet, than the nature of stars and electrons. When science learns to understand human nature, it will be able to bring happiness into our lives which machines and the physical sciences have failed to create

Questions:

- 1- Suggest a suitable title for the passage. [2]
- 2- What is the adequate method of dealing with our rebellious instincts? [3]
- 3- What is the part played by opportunity? [3]
- 4- How can we improve human life? [3]

Education brings a lot of benefits to society. Educated people can easily understand their rights and duties in society, and can act for the good of others and of themselves. For example, a well-educated person will not like to break a rule of traffic when he reads it on a road crossing while driving his vehicle. He will realize that if he breaks the rule knowing it to be very much there, others looking at him would also like to break it, and it might result in dangerous accidents on roads. Educated person can follow the programmes of political parties in general elections and can vote wisely and properly. They cannot easily be deceived by clever politicians at all. They vote as they think in the best interest of the country and the nation, and thus they elect the most suitable candidates for their assemblies. Educated people are better workers than illiterate people in factories and on farms. They can learn easily how to work new machines according to new methods in factories and farms. Thus they can easily increase the production of things and daily use and of good grains. We should therefore, try to educate our people as early as possible. It would be very good indeed to have adult education fit in our cities, towns, villages. If our resources permit, we may also introduce compulsory universal education up to Matric.

- Briefly tell the benefits of education?
- How should we educate people?
- How can education play a role in electing good politicians?
- How can education help us to increase the production on farms and factories?
